GREENBERG

COSMETIC SURGERY

Cutting Edge Technology
with Dr. Stephen T. Greenberg

"Utilizing only the latest and most advanced technology, your recovery is fast and the sooner you act, the sooner you'll look fantastic."

Now more than ever, we can count on the latest, most innovative technology to help achieve the best possible cosmetic results. We are each confronted by the media with hundreds of alternatives to help improve our appearance, regain our youth, and tone up our bodies. The reality is that maintaining a youthful look requires paying attention to the basics – get adequate sleep, drink plenty of water, watch your diet and find the time to exercise. What many of us find, however, is that even with our best personal efforts the quest for beauty may need a little help.

J-Plasma®

Greenberg Cosmetic Surgery is the premier destination for a wide range of aesthetic solutions including J-Plasma® Lipo and J-Plasma® Lift. These ground breaking procedures provide a fusion of technology that removes unwanted fat while tightening skin. Results are immediate and improve over time. This is the choice among men and women seeking to rejuvenate the face, neck, abdomen, bra-line, love handles and chest. Greenberg Cosmetic Surgery is one of the only practices in the country offering this state-of-the-art solution. With J-Plasma® Lipo and the J-Plasma® Lift, patients are quickly back to their normal routines with virtually no detectible signs of having a procedure. Other rapid recovery procedures like breast augmentation and breast lifts are done with minimal swelling, bruising and almost no downtime. Each procedure is customized to the individual's face, body, breast type and shape for beautiful, natural-looking results.

Neograft®

Neograft® is a groundbreaking procedure that is virtually painless and takes just a few hours to complete. Neograft® provides a hairline that looks and functions naturally. The procedure is effective for both men and women and most patients experience minimal or even no down time. Neograft® extracts follicular units and repositions them in the thinning areas. This method also alleviates clumping of the transplanted hairs and minimizes scarring. The grafts are harvested using a specialized instrument. There is no linear scar and no stitches are required. Treatment options vary from patient to patient depending on the level of hair loss, the texture of donor hair and the patients personal goals.

Coolsculpting®

Utilizing carefully controlled-cooling technology, this advanced system is able to target and freeze fat cells beneath the skin without harming the skin itself. Once the fat cells have been crystallized, the body will naturally respond by gradually shrinking them and compressing the treated area. No needles, anesthesia, or downtime necessary! A variety of areas across the body can be slimmed through this exciting treatment including the: abdomen, upper arms, back, outer thighs, inner thighs and more! CoolSculpting® is a safe and effective body contouring treatment to reduce areas of stubborn fat that are resistant to dieting and exercise.

Ultherapy®

If you want to reverse the signs of aging without undergoing a surgical procedure, then you are a great candidate for Ultherapy®. This high-tech procedure uses ultrasound therapy to tighten and refine the appearance of skin. Ultherapy® is a non-invasive, and highly safe treatment for the neck, chin, cheeks, brow area, and chest. Using focused ultrasound therapy, Ultherapy® sends safe, strategic bursts of energy beneath the skin, heating the underlying tissues. This process can stimulate and promote new collagen growth without damaging your skin. In a single treatment, Ultherapy® can reduce the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles around the face or tighten the skin on the décolletage. Ultherapy® can be performed on its own or in conjunction with other facial cosmetic procedures for the most dramatic results.

Viveve®

There is a new and exciting technology that restores a youthful aesthetic and improves functionality within a woman's intimacy. Viveve® uses clinically-proven radiofrequency to stimulate the production of collagen. It is a unique treatment that restores vaginal tightness, treats elasticity, urinary incontinence and even increases lubrication and sexual arousal. Viveve® can be performed alone or with Labiaplasty for improved vaginal symmetry.

I was contemplating getting liposuction and was down and depressed. She advised me that I could lose the weight without surgery and to give the HCG diet a chance. I am now down over 30 pounds and feeling great. It is EASY and I am NOT hungry! ~ Google

No matter what I did I could not lose weight. With 2 cycles of the HCG Diet I was able to lose close to 40 pounds. The weight comes off so fast! I wish I did it years ago. If I can do it - you can do it. 5 stars! ~ Google

Week of September 7-13, 2018

Riders this past week: 37,411

Rider miles this past week: 100,999

DOWN IN THE TUBE

Horseman McLain Ward, in full riding garb, was seen sitting on the Subway very proudly as it bumped along from Bridgehampton toward Westhampton last Sunday evening. He had seven blue ribbons on his chest. Some people say he won the Hampton Classic Grand Prix a few times. Also seen on Hamptons Subway this week were Madonna, Mayor Bloomberg and fellow billionaire John Catsimatidis, all going hither and thither.

NEW SLOGAN

Our new marketing director Phyllis Applewatch has declared her first order of business to be the creation of a slogan for Hamptons Subway. She says every business should have one. So from now on it's "Hamptons Subway: Better Than Most." This beat out her earlier suggestion "Hamptons Subway: Now a Good Subway System." Commissioner Aspinall rejected that, saying it suggested the subway system was at one time not good.

FLAGMEN AGAIN

A transportation expert we hired to tell us ways to improve Hamptons Subway has said the biggest problem is our flagmen, who wave red, orange and green flags in the tunnels to instruct the motorman to stop, go slow or go fast. He thinks it should be replaced by the automated red, orange and green light systems found in all other subways. This expert is apparently not familiar with the strength of the flagmen union, which has negotiated 10-year contracts since the founding of the Subway System in 1925. The new contract is now in its third year with even more to go, and yes, it's true that flagmen have fallen asleep or just gone off for a cup of coffee and that has caused near collisions, especially this summer, but we signed the agreement and we are stuck with it. Automation is not always better anyway, the Commissioner says, and he ought to know.

HORSES TROTTED OFF TO WESTHAMPTON

With the horse show over, the 210 participating horses were trotted back Sunday night through the tunnels from Bridgehampton to their trailers at the Westhampton stop. Cleaning up after the horses after their annual "walk" did cause Hamptons Subway to reopen at 7 a.m. instead of 6 a.m. Monday, because the manure left on the tracks was greater than usual. Something new in the feed, we were told. We regret the delay.

NO TOURS

People have asked why we don't offer tours through the historic Hamptons Subway Building on Ponquogue Avenue in Hampton Bays. It is after all the only building in the United States designed in the Fascist manner by Hitler's architect Albert Speer—in 1935, before the war, of course. The reason is complicated and I will get to that, but I can tell you briefly what's on each floor. The ground floor is reception and secretarial, the second floor is for bookkeeping, junior executives and the tech department, the third floor is the company cafeteria and senior executives. The top floor is off limits. It includes Commissioner Aspinall's private suite and also a courtroom with a judge who decides on subway-related legal cases, which includes people who get arrested and charged with malingering or stealing. The courtroom's been up there since the beginning and we think it works well, but we fear the American government might close it down if it knew about it, so don't tell anybody. As for the basement, it is filled to the brim with old no-longer-used subway tokens.

COMMISSIONER ASPINALL'S MESSAGE

September is our take-it-easy month after the rush of the summer. Everything's relaxed and the subway employees are much friendlier to the customers, so enjoy it. 🐾

COMPILED BY DANIEL KOONTZ

SIDEWALK ROLL-UP SCHEDULE SET

The Hamptons Police have announced the fall 2018 schedule for rolling up the sidewalks across the South Fork. "Some people think that Tumbleweed Tuesday (the day after Labor Day) is the start of the off-season," says Hamptons Police spokesman Larry Hirsch. "But you know that summer's really over when we roll up the sidewalks and put them in storage for the winter." Although the roll-up is an annual event, it remains a source of tremendous contention among residents and business owners who complain that it inhibits year-round activity in the area. Hirsch finds this complaint without merit. "With all the griping about summertime crowds, you'd think they would be thanking us for helping tamp it down in the winter. But no!"

The roll-up process takes a little over a week, and every year the police begin the process in a different location. "This year, we're starting from Montauk," says Hirsch. The shifting of start locations and itineraries is designed to provide a measure of equity to the different villages. "If we started in Southampton every year, that wouldn't be fair to businesses and pedestrians there," notes Hirsch. "So we have a regular cycle that we follow. We don't see why it should be controversial."

Hirsch says that the police won't start removing the sidewalks in Montauk until November 7, the day after Election Day. "We used to start this whole thing a lot sooner," he says. "But in the last 20 years we've not only found that people are lingering out here longer after Labor Day, but we've also become more sensitive to the Jewish holidays."

Once the roll-up begins, pedestrians and businesses will be able to use the Hamptons Police's new "Where the Sidewalk Ends" app to get up-to-the-minute updates about where sidewalks will still be usable. 2018 marks the debut of this special service, which can be accessed on a range of devices. "The app will be a big help for people," says Hirsch. "It will take all of the guesswork out of it."

Despite this helpful new technology, pedestrian groups have mobilized against the roll-up. Denton Fisk, who heads an advocacy group called Sidewalkers Unite, had sharp words for the custom. "What this is really about is people who don't want to shovel their walks when the snow comes," Fisk says. "The police are just subsidizing laziness and absentee ownership."

Hirsch says that the police expect to complete the sidewalk roll-up by December 4. "Barring any unforeseen weather events, this should be a very smooth year. We have a lot of practice with this." 🐾

The Montauk Monster

The Killer Shark the Size of a Car and What Happened

BY DAN RATTINER

It's true that Montauk holds more deep sea fishing records than any other port in the world. But the record for the largest fish ever caught on rod and reel has eluded it. That record remains a 2,664-pound shark caught by a fisherman out of Adelaide, Australia in 1959.

Nevertheless, if you go down to the Clam and Chowder House at Salivar's Dock today, you will see, high up on the wall, the enormous head of a killer shark, its jagged teeth exposing a hideous grin, that had once been attached to a shark that weighed as much as a car—3,427 pounds—and which was reeled in on tackle that would break if it were stressed to an amount greater than 100 pounds. It was caught by a Montauk fisherman and reeled in 30 miles southeast of Montauk in early August, 1986. It should have broken the record, but didn't.

This shark was disqualified by a representative from the International Game Fish Association, who came up to Montauk a few days after the fish was caught to review the claim. He'd read an article I'd written in Dan's Papers about how this fish got caught. I'd written it in detail.

I didn't know that one particular detail I wrote about would disqualify the catch. Neither did Captain Frank Mundus, who captained the boat that caught it and told me how he did it, there out on the dock the night the fish was brought ashore.

Later, after everything blew over, Mundus told me he forgave me. "You couldn't know," he said. "Neither could I." The Australian entry is still unchallenged to this day.

On the Sunday afternoon of August 8, 1986, Captain Mundus took four New York City fishermen aboard his Cricket II deep sea shark fishing boat. These men were serious fishermen who'd paid Mundus $1,500 to be out there for a full 24 hours. They were not expecting to catch anything the size of an automobile. They were after sharks that would weigh on the order of 200 or 300 pounds each. That was the plan.

On Monday morning, 30 miles off Montauk, Mundus came upon the floating carcass of a

A MASSIVE SHARK WAS CAUGHT BY CAPTAIN MUNDUS AND DONNIE BRADDICK

55-foot dead whale. Herds of sharks were feeding on this whale. It occurred to Mundus that a giant might be among them.

Mundus talked to the businessmen. He wanted to stay near to that dead whale through to Tuesday evening if needed. He sensed the giant. He'd extend the charter, for free, just to stay with him. The businessmen talked it over and told Mundus they appreciated the offer but had to get back to their businesses in Manhattan. So Mundus radioed to a nearby charter boat to come alongside, pick them up and take them in. He was staying.

The following afternoon, he saw what he was looking for. A great white was dining on the whale, going off and then coming back. He'd try to hook this shark with 100-pound test line. A fight of up to six hours would be possible. This was a problem. He was 60 years old and knew his limits. "I'm no spring chicken," he told me back on the dock. He'd need a young "damn fool" to do the fight. And he knew where there was one.

"I'd been in radio contact with Donnie Braddick of the Fish On, nearby looking for tuna. He's 30. I called him, told him where I was, what it was all about and asked him if he'd like to come over."

Donnie Braddick saw this as a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. He'd be the damn fool. He motored over and they lashed the two boats together. Captain Mundus played out his fishing line with butterfish and whiting disguising the hooks. And they waited.

I asked Mundus the obvious question. How do you reel in a 3,500-pound fish on 100-pound line?

"You don't," he said. "You just catch him on the line. And then you chase him around the ocean with the boat and you tire him out."

I told Mundus I thought this was terrifying.

"Finally, you pull up alongside him in your boat—you find a time when he is resting comfortably up on the surface—and you hit him in the tail with your gaff hook, and then you lasso him with a rope."

"What if he wakes up?"

"That's the thing. If he does, you're dead."

"And how do you kill him?"

"By dragging him home backwards. The water goes up into his gills the wrong way. He suffocates after a time."

"Oh."

The Cricket II was only 42 feet long. The fish he dragged home would be lashed to the side, heeling the ship way over. It wouldn't be easy, but it could be done if you went slow.

Mundus sat in the fighting chair, ordered Braddick up to the wheelhouse to pilot the Cricket II and shouted up to him to go this way and that. He'd use his 30 years of experience to get the monster to take the bait. An hour went by, and then... he bit.

"As soon as he took the hook, I called to Braddick to come down and get in the chair. He'd bring him in. It would be his fish. We changed places."

Over the marine radio, Mundus called Captain Carl Darenberg of the Montauk Marine Basin to tell him what was going on. Darenberg told Mundus he'd stay at his desk, available for further conversations, and then called his wife to say he wouldn't be home for dinner.

By 11 p.m. that night, more than 1,000 people including this reporter, were down at the docks, hoping to get a glimpse of Mundus coming through the jetties. He was taking his time. We waited for hours. Car headlights were turned on the jetty. Finally, the Cricket II came through at a slow four knots, leaning way over to starboard with the weight of the shark lashed there. It was quite a sight.

Lit by other car headlights at the dock, a yellow forklift tried to raise the fish, but it was so long the forklift could not get it completely out of the water. A construction crane was brought in, and, after using it to slide a heavy cargo net under the shark, they were able to lift it up and place it atop a big scale that could weigh things up to 3,500 pounds. The giant lay there, its tongue hanging out one side of its mouth, its twin rows of teeth glistening. The needle went up to 3,500 and hovered there. Deducting the 72 pounds for the net, the Marine Basin announced its weight at 3,427 pounds. Pictures were taken.

The fish lay on the dock for the next 24 hours, during which time reporters and newscasters down and the fight was on..."

And that's what disqualified this catch. From start to finish, the catching of the fish had to be done with just one fisherman in the fighting chair. And it wasn't.

Years later, Lou Russo, a columnist for the Fisherman's Weekly, wrote "(This incident reported in Dan's Papers) was the likely reason the IGFA did not approve the record. A record 547 kg shortfin mako catch by Jody Daniels on the Hustler captained by Glen Hodson on March 2, 1990, was disqualified for the same reason."

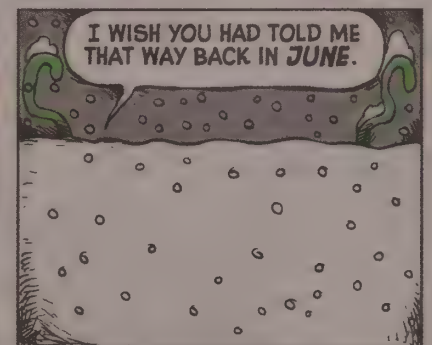

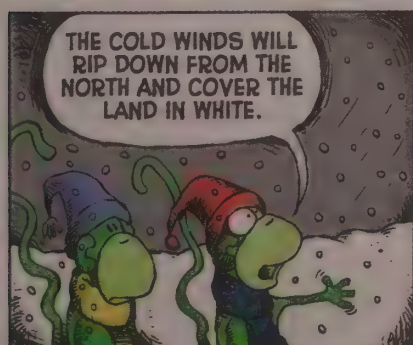

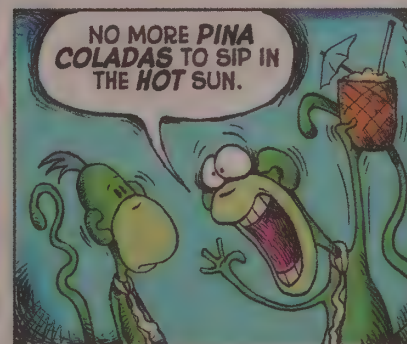

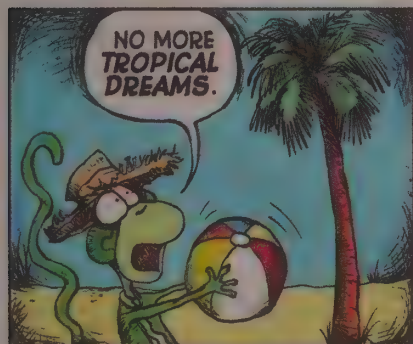

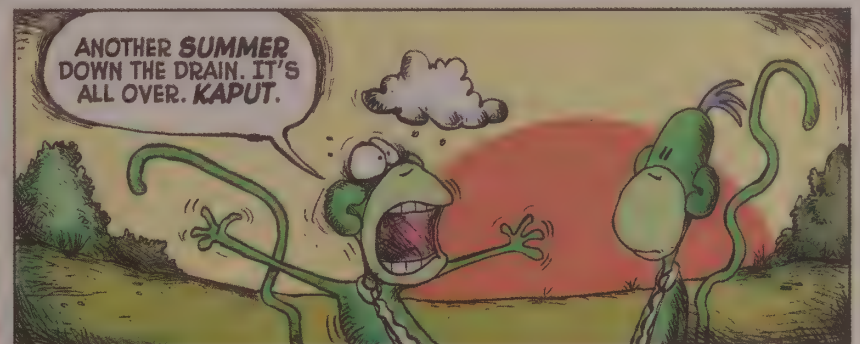

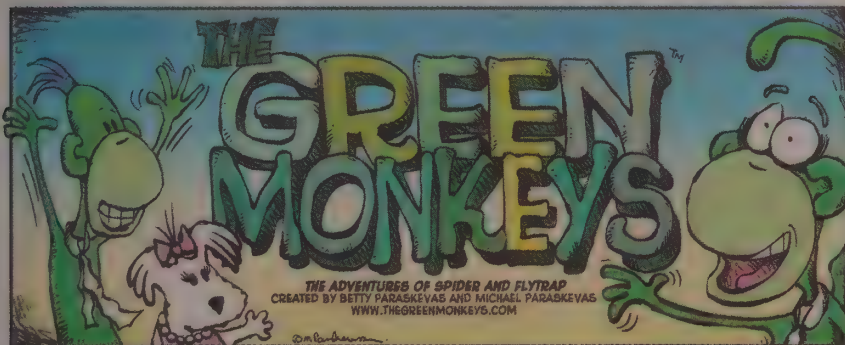

I told a friend this story.

He thought about it. "You should kill yourself," he said.

from CBS, ABC, The New York Times and the national media came out to tell the story, as did scientists from the Museum of Natural History, National Marine Fisheries Service and the International Game Fish Association.

Dan's Papers was published. I had written what Mundus had told me.

"The monster took the hook around 4:30 in the afternoon with Mundus in the chair. Mundus immediately got up. Braddick sat

How Georgica Beach Got Closed For Labor Day Weekend Swimming

GEORGICA BEACH HAD A LIFEGUARD PROBLEM OVER LABOR DAY WEEKEND

BY DAN RATTINER

Georgica Beach in East Hampton Village was closed to swimming over Labor Day weekend.

I know what you are thinking. It was pollution. It's erosion. Or maybe a shark. You are wrong. It just may have been a bikini.

As you may know, the Village of Southampton has strict rules about what you can wear or not wear in public there. Signs are sprinkled around the village reminding you of those rules. On Main Street, correct apparel is required. There are other rules for elsewhere. These rules have been on the books since the 1880s, at a time when, if women went in the water, they wore "bathing costumes." Things were pretty prudish then.

Enforcement is now lax. But the rule remains.

Now this may have had something to do with what happened in East Hampton. But maybe not.

Three months ago, just a day after the big Memorial Day weekend, one of the village trustees suggested at a meeting that the female lifeguards at the village beaches wear less-revealing bikinis. A conversation ensued. The female lifeguards are mostly high school age, though some are older. The red bikinis with the badges on them are the official uniforms for the lifeguards. The boys wear just the bottoms. The girls both tops and bottoms.

But times have changed. Maybe the Village, which pays for the bathing suits, should provide bathing suits, for the girls anyway, that were less revealing.

In the end, the Village decided a change should be made. The female lifeguard themselves could pick the new ones out.

What could go wrong?

The female lifeguards reviewed photos and descriptions of different suits and pointed out what they thought would work. They showed their choice to the chief manager. And so these new bathing suits were ordered. It was reported by The East Hampton Star.

The bathing suits came and the managers were not happy with them. One senior lifeguard called them "Brazilian." At this point, the Star reported, according to lifeguard Christina Cangioli, one of the female lifeguards was asked to pose wearing this suit and a picture of her in it was taken by a female manager on her cellphone. The managers eventually decided the new suits would not work. The board would never approve them. Instead, they'd have to buy a different bathing suit. And this time they would pick it out themselves. They picked out another two-piece that had fuller coverage.

When these replacement suits came, the managers reportedly asked the female lifeguards to try them on. According to the Star, Cangioli said they were asked by a secretary if any of them would try them on and be photographed wearing them. A beach manager, Jim Nicoletti, denies this, saying that the managers only wanted to see how these larger two-piece bathing suits fit in terms of how they might work out doing lifeguarding. The lifeguards are always on the move at the village's beaches. Sand would get into them. Indeed, both the female lifeguards and the managers did not like these replacement suits.

Cangioli reportedly said she wondered why there was now all this focus on suits, the Star wrote. The female lifeguards later said they felt they had been asked to do "modeling" for the managers, and considered the situation demoralizing and a hostile workplace.

Nicoletti said he went to the Village Trustees when the replacement suits came in and asked them to postpone the selecting of new suits until next year. The female lifeguards had been issued the usual bikini suits they'd worn every year, he says. They were wearing them, by this time, for nearly a month. That they were asked to change suits in the middle of the season was confusing.

According to Nicoletti, the Village Trustees told him to go ahead with the change anyway. Nicoletti also said later he tried a second time to get them to put this off to next year with the same result. He thought it was getting in the way of the work, too.

The female lifeguards did wear them for about a week. They got in the way of the work. And sand got in them. They seemed more like a suit you'd wear at a swimming pool. By this time, they had switched back to the original suits they had been issued before Memorial Day.

As a result of all this, Cangiolosi met with the other female lifeguards and they agreed to write a letter to the Village Board. In it, the female lifeguards accused the managers of harassment and the creation of a hostile work environment. There was also the claim that one of the managers told the girls they would be fired if they didn't wear the new suits.

The girls also decided that, since their direct report was to the managers, they would show the letter to the managers before sending it in. A meeting then took place between the female lifeguards and several of the managers. The managers said that the letter would not be accepted as it was written, according to the Star, and eventually a version of it was delivered to Village Hall.

The Village of East Hampton has a longtime mayor, Paul Rickenback. But for most day-to-day matters, there is a full-time Village Administrator named Becky Molinaro Hansen, and it was she who investigated the whole matter.

Over the next six weeks, Ms. Molinaro Hansen examined the documents and interviewed nine employees and in the end wrote a report she presented to the Village Board at a meeting on August 17. In it she noted that the Board had never asked to see any photograph of a lifeguard in the bikini, she said she believed the image of the girl in the "Brazilian" bikini was taken on the cellphone in a light-hearted way, that it was deleted, and that it was her conclusion that the investigation did not reveal sufficient evidence to result in a charge of sexual harassment. She also concluded that the swimsuit matter "should have been handled better" by the managers. She also said she would have the managers undergoing supplemental training.

At the August 17 meeting, the contents of the letter were not made available to the press, and, as a result, the editors of The East Hampton Star made a Freedom of Information (FOIL) request, which resulted in their quickly getting the letter and publishing a full account of what happened in their issue of August 30. It seems there were enough lifeguards and managers on staff before August 30 to man the village beaches but afterward, three lifeguard managers, without notice, quit their jobs, including Jim Nicoletti in disgust.

And that's why for Labor Day weekend, because of the resignations and the usual going-back-to college depletion of the older guards, no lifeguards were available to be on duty to protect people going in the water at Georgica.

As for Jim Nicoletti, he says he quit because of an editorial written in the Star that accompanied the article.

"I had gone to bat twice to get the Village to postpone the new suits because they upset the female lifeguards," he told me. "We had photographed a female guard wearing the first suit because the chief wasn't there when the suits came in and we were packing them up to send them back and we wanted him to see why. He then did come in, so we deleted the picture because it wasn't needed. There never was a second photo or any other request for a photo. Ms. Cangiolosi might have thought we were going to ask her. We weren't. I certainly understood she was feeling uncomfortable.

"The Star wrote in its editorial we were taking photos of the female lifeguards for our amusement all over the place. We never did that that. I called back their reporter. I told their reporter there was the one photo and what it was for and they blew it all up in an editorial into something we need further punishment for. I've been a teacher and coach here for 30 years, now at the beach for 10 as a manager. When I read that, I quit."

The Trump Prognosis

Soon We Will See if Trump Is Out for Us or for Himself

BY DAN RATTINER

Donald Trump is about to make a decision that could either take this country into a dictatorship or suffer what might be serious personal consequences.

It's pretty stark. And it isn't pretty.

Special Prosecutor Mueller is going to soon make a report that will say one of four things.

1. Trump is found to not have conspired with the Russians or obstructed the attempt to see if he did so.

2. Trump is found to not have conspired with the Russians or obstructed the attempt to see if he did so, but is found to have likely engaged in illegal financial activities for which he could be tried and convicted and sentenced to multi-year jail terms upon the conclusion of his Presidency, much as his lawyer and campaign manager are heading toward now.

3. Trump is found to have obstructed the investigation of Russian meddling in his Presidential run, which is a crime that could result in a long jail term after he concludes his Presidency.

4. Trump is found to have conspired with the Russians to subvert the Presidential election, which is a treasonable offense that can result, if upheld in court, in a death sentence or life imprisonment after he is relieved of his Presidency.

I don't know about 3 and 4, but 2 seems quite possible. There is a belief among many that certain Wall Street billionaires launder funds and hide tax information as a kind of way of life. It goes on. Someone is doing it. Some of his closest advisors were doing it. So said the jury that convicted them. Trump won't release his tax returns. He tried to stiff those who attended Trump University, and we know the Trump Foundation was so misused that the State of New York has filed a lawsuit to get it shut down.

I have been reading the recent book Fire and Fury by Michael Wolff, and much of it may not be accurate, but in it Wolff writes that Donald Trump and his friends and family went into the run for the presidency as a sort of lark. Nobody expected he would win, it was just thought the run would enhance Donald Trump's business interests, massage his ego and be good publicity. As a result, Wolff says, Trump never gave serious consideration to what might transpire afterwards. It was so unexpected. He says therefore that when the results were announced, Trump was in shock, his assistants were terrified and Melania Trump was very unhappy because the win would mean a whole new lifestyle that she never wanted.

I also recall that during the campaign, Trump was told of the immunity from prosecution a president gets. Subsequently, he said if he became president, he could walk down Fifth Avenue and shoot people and not lose votes.

It's true a president is immune from prosecution while in office. But something he might never have known about was that he would be liable for prosecution for things he did before the presidency if and when, however it might happen, he left the presidency. His doctors have declared him a robust man with a strong constitution. Although now 72, he may be anticipating living a long time. This is very real for him.

Under these circumstances and considering the likelihoods, Trump could either do nothing, get Mueller fired so this never comes up, or, failing that, not only win the 2020 election but afterwards continue on with the 2024 and 2028 elections in a kind of friendly dictator "President for Life" situation. As long as he remains president he needn't worry about being either a criminal or a traitor. As you see, he has a great motivation for remaining president forever. He needs to die in his sleep, lying in his bed with the presidential seal on the headboard and with friends and family around him.

I am not making this up. This is a very real consideration.

Soon we will know what he wants to do. He says he's out to save the country. But maybe it's just his neck. 🐢

HONORING the ARTIST

BY STACY DERMONT

This Week's Cover Artist: Carl Bretzke

“My work is a snapshot of what I currently know.

It may change over the years,” says painter Carl Bretzke says. “For me this is a lifelong study and a wonderful journey. I paint almost every day. Typically I paint in outdoor plein air competitions around the country roughly one week each month. I spend equal time in the studio, usually doing larger pieces.” His cover image for our annual Sag HarborFest issue, “The Last Show,” is a love letter to the Sag Harbor Cinema, past and future.

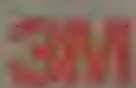

I love painting night scenes and I was happy to see this colorful and iconic view from in front of the Grenning Gallery, where I was then in a show. I painted a small version from life, which turned out to be popular enough that I was asked to do two more similar scenes in the studio including “The Last Show.” Within a month of completion the Cinema burned down. There are now commemorative prints available at the Grenning Gallery with proceeds helping to rebuild the theater.

Having window film installed in your home:

- ✓ Reduces heat and glare
- ✓ Saves on energy costs
- ✓ Fade reduction on fabrics, flooring and furniture

does it also shine a light on Sag Harbor's future?

Definitely both! The old theater was a piece of Sag Harbor Americana, which I memorialized, and at the same time the painting also celebrates the rebuilding currently underway.

What was your most memorable experience this summer?

It went so fast I hardly remember. I had a great week of painting in Door County, Wisconsin in July. Perfect weather and good friends.

Where in the world is your favorite spot?

I'm a native Minnesotan and reside in Minneapolis. I typically swim in one of our 10,000 lakes. Long Island is gorgeous, though! It's hard to beat the ocean. Besides Sag Harbor, I have stayed in Amagansett and in East Hampton when I come to paint and enjoy them all. Montauk is one of my favorite painting destinations on Long Island. I like the working docks.

What is the significance of painting in contemporary society?

My life is enriched through painting and through looking at my favorite art. Others obviously feel the same. At the end of life, many people say that love is way more important than work. I think art falls somewhere in between, but closer to love.

“Contemporary” is partially defined as belonging to or occurring in the present, so what is contemporary art, really? My art is somewhat impressionistic realism and occurs in the present, so I will call it “contemporary realist impressionism.”

Where's the strangest place your work has appeared?

Probably in several bathrooms, although I did have a painting on the cover of a medical journal a few years ago, which was unexpected.

If you could sit down to coffee with any artist from history, who would it be and what would you talk about?

I would like to talk to Isaac Levitan (Russian) about his technique and how he interprets and then paints what he sees. I guess I would have to include some small talk maybe about the coffee and “does he golf?”

Where can our readers see more of your work?

At the Grenning Gallery in Sag Harbor; Susan Calloway Fine Art in Washington, DC and on carlbretzke.com.

After losing our son to this fate, I had to take action. So I created The Tyler Project. Established to increase and improve coordination and delivery of mental health services for students, young adults and families in our community. Awareness for Cyber-Bullying. Funding will be used for counseling, educational services and programs to help predict and prevent some of the crises facing young people today.

The Project creates and funds programs and lectures for the East End school districts, Fire Dept's, Police Dept's, Churches and other community programs. We are working with Therapists and Doctors to help reduce the high expense of therapy. Working with Southampton Hospital to create an area of the emergency room that can provide privacy for crisis's for families and patients. Providing access to an in Staff Psychologist within the emergency room. Helping to get immediate help in the "Hamptons" for emergency crisis for which is currently non-existent.

Our Project has created a highly successful therapy group for young adults aged 15 - 22 called "The East End Chat & Chill". We are on facebook/ [EastEndChatandChill]

Suicide is the 10th leading cause of death in Americans, with someone dying of suicide every 13.3 minutes in 2011. Traditional suicide prevention resources such as education, counseling and help lifelines are being augmented with mobile apps that expand the reach and try to save lives that might otherwise be lost. Suicide prevention apps aimed to help those with suicidal thoughts, as well as friends, family, and loved ones looking to educate themselves and reach out to someone in need.

Sag Harborfest

Harborfest Showcases Sag Harbor Pride and Fun

With the passing of Labor Day, the Hamptons summer officially comes to a close. Now, the focus shifts from attracting tourists to celebrating the local communities that provide cultural riches, and one of the greatest examples of these celebrations is Harborfest. The village-wide block party is the epitome of Sag Harbor pride, honoring its gallant maritime history and its vibrant culture.

This year, there's much to celebrate! The Sag Harbor Partnership successfully purchased the iconic Sag Harbor Cinema, which was devastated by a fire in 2016, and has broken ground on the beautiful redesign. Demolition has begun on the 1.25 acres of land that will become the John Steinbeck Waterfront Park—named in tribute to the famous Sag Harbor writer. And the 2018 Harborfest offerings are bigger and better than ever before.

The weekend kicks off with the Spotlight on Boating and Fishing cocktail reception at Breakwater Yacht Club (51 Bay Street) on Friday. The party features a boat show, food, drink and live music by Gene Casey and The Lone Sharks. Bay Street Theater (1 Bay Street) continues the fun with an epic tribute to Bob Dylan, courtesy of The Complete Unknowns. And it follows up the next evening with a gut-busting night of All-Star Comedy starring Dan Perlman, Dave Temple and Pat Dixon. 631-725-9500, baystreet.org

The Arts and Crafts Fair and Whale of a Sale return once again and showcase the best of Sag Harbor retail. The fair is set up at Marine Park (waterside, past Bay Street Theater and Sag Harbor Gym) and features clothing by Dear You and Inca Heritage, accessories by Huggable Knits and Stella Krasinski Design, jewelry by Eyes on You and Panache Jewelry, art by Juan Reverberi and Tommy Rickard and so much more. The sidewalk sale brings all the best deals outside, so you don't have to miss all the free live music while perusing the great local products. Acts on the Long Wharf include the Sag Harbor Community Band, The Scofflaws, Wiggleboy, The HooDoo Loungers, Jim Turner, Tim Fitall and Sampawams Creek.

Don't miss the annual whaleboat races on Saturday and Sunday, which task rowing teams with racing to a fake, white whale; harpooning it with a plunger; and hurrying back to shore to advance to the championship round. The festival has plenty for the little ones to do too, including tug-of-war, magnet making, hula-hooping, potato sack races, corn shucking contests and other fun activities.

While you're in the Village for Harborfest this weekend, explore Sag Harbor, past and present, at these incredible art and museum exhibitions.

The Sag Harbor Historical Society, located in the Annie Cooper Boyd House (174 Main Street), boasts an extensive collection of photographs that capture Sag Harbor's residents, buildings and important moments. It also has over 500 written documents, such as diaries and letters, and many artworks created by Boyd herself. See related story on page 52. 631-725-5092, sagharborhistorical.org

The Sag Harbor Whaling and Historical Museum's (200 Main Street) current exhibition is Looking Up, Looking Out: At the Sky and the Stars, at the Land and the Sea, featuring works by Vija Celmins, Ann Chwatsky, April Gornik and John Torreano. These artists are fascinated by the heavens and express their adoration in unique ways, some literal and some abstract. On view through September 16. 631-725-0770, sagharborwhalingmuseum.org

Artist Ben Fenske turns his attention to home and hearth in a solo show on display at Grenning Gallery (17 Washington Street) through September 16. In it, he paints intimate interiors and gorgeous landscapes that capture the beauty of his Italian homeland. 631-725-

This month, the Tulla Booth Gallery (66 Main Street) is honoring renowned photographer Stephen Wilkes, whose work has been featured in Time, Vanity Fair, Sports Illustrated and The New York Times Magazine. His wildly popular "day to night" photos are truly stunning, stitching together the span of an entire day into one unbelievable image. ## Julia Macchio Shines in Gateway's Flashdance: The Musical

Oh, what a feeling! Ending their summer 2018 season with a show that will tug at your heartstrings, the Gateway Playhouse brings the electrifying and compelling story of Flashdance: The Musical to the beautifully renovated Patchogue Theater. This musical is full of big dreams, big talent and big ballads from the '80s that will spark that nostalgic feeling and have you bopping your head and singing along with the company.

Long Island native Julia Macchio—and daughter of the karate kid himself, Ralph Macchio—headlines the production as Alexandra "Alex" Owens, a young steelworker who doubles at night as a singer/dancer at a club. Macchio is no stranger to her wide-eyed, big-haired character, having performed around the world as Alex in the International Tour of the show.

There are so many moments during the show where you find yourself lost in the spellbinding music, especially the slower arrangement of the hit song "Gloria." The song fits the story so well, yet it doesn't lose the flavor of the original. Amanda Tong as the flighty Gloria is everything you want her to be—sweet natured, a little ditzy, but a loyal and loving friend—with that '80s hair, teased and topped with a gaudy headband. Gloria sings her namesake song as her own ballad, softly at first and rising to a crescendo as the show progresses and she finds herself in a bad situation.

JULIA MACCHIO AS ALEX OWENS

JEFF BELLANTE

The central focus of this production is dance. Macchio brings a level of talent and poise to her character, and it truly seems as if this role was made for her. At heart a professional dancer, the passion for dance began early for this young starlet, right here at the Long Island Academy of Dance. A Hofstra University graduate, Macchio has performed on some of the most iconic stages in the world, including a stint in the Radio City Spring Spectacular Workshop.

In the show, Alex's dream of attending a prestigious dance school in Pittsburgh is the grand prize, but she suffers from self-doubt—though when she takes the stage to dance she is mesmerizing. Alex catches the eye of Nick Hurley, whose wealthy family owns the steel mill Alex is apprenticing at. Alex rejects Nick vehemently at first, but this story would not be complete without a case of star-crossed lovers. Anthony Crouchelli as Nick is humble, caring and kind—not at all what Alex expected of this privileged man. Crouchelli as Nick is endearing, charming and attentive to Alex, and she basks in his love and warmth. The chemistry between the pair is delightful and passionate, and you can't help but root for this young couple.

The iconic "Maniac" song and its fast-paced, mind-boggling dance moves seem almost effortless to Macchio, who moves with the kind of easy grace that speaks to her many hours working on her craft. Gateway is always on point with their talent choices, but they hit it out of the park with casting Macchio as their lead. As Alex, she is so believable, so real it is awe-inspiring.

The entire cast is immensely talented and Alex's friends/back up singers really get the crowd going with their infectious energy and talent. Danielle Marie Gonzalez reprises her role as Tess, whom she played during the National Tour of Flashdance. Tess is an untamed beauty and her performance of the rock ballad "I Love Rock 'n' Roll" is spicy and electric—the girl is on fire. Kiki, played by Laquet Sharnell Pringle, has powerhouse vocals that will have you cheering for more. She's captivating and commands the stage during her sexy performance of "Manhunt."

The impressive set includes a walkway into the crowd, myriad moving parts and a backdrop including the "steel city" that was Pittsburgh in 1983. Directed and choreographed by Keith Andrews and Vincent Ortega, Gateway once again delivers on its promise to stage Broadway-caliber productions right here on Long Island.

Flashdance: The Musical is one not to miss for so many reasons—the nostalgic music of the '80s, the incredible dancing, and the one and only Julia Macchio, whose career is destined to be great. She was a delightful surprise that I hope we see more of on the Gateway stage.

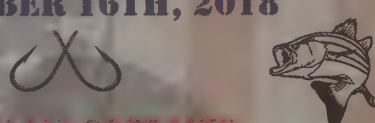

BY GENEVIEVE HORSBURGH

Flashdance: The Musical runs through September 15 at the Patchogue Theater, presented by Gateway. For tickets and information visit gatewayplayhouse.org.

Holy Ground BBQ Has South Fork Roots

Attendees of the 2018 Dan's GrillHampton presented by New York Prime Beef got a delicious taste of Tribeca in the Holy Ground BBQ's grilled chicken sandwich with house sauce and spicy cabbage slaw. But the three-man team behind Holy Ground's table was experiencing a taste of home. Sag Harbor's Nick Dwoskin and Kai Vataash and Southampton's Alexis Krisel were excited to share the food of Holy Ground with some of their friends, family and neighbors. All three hope to be getting out to the East End more with Holy Ground pop-ups and party catering. As Krisel says, he "wants everybody to be together loving food."

What have the two 2012 Pierson High School grads been up to? Vataash attended Tulane University and settled in Brooklyn two years ago. He mainly works as a server because, as he says, he "enjoys talking to people on the floor from different areas, different clientele, all walks of life." And he values that this career choice affords him the ability to travel. Dwoskin now works as the kitchen manager at Foster Sundry, another restaurant in the group owned along with Holy Ground.

While Vataash worked at the Beacon in Sag Harbor for seven summers, Dwoskin "diversified," starting out with a stint "flippin' burgers at Bay Burger at age sixteen," where he first discovered "loving the rush, sweat, heat" of the "sporting event" of food service. His time at Channing Daughters Winery in Bridgehampton heightened an appreciation for wine pairings, especially for enjoying the unique flavor profile of orange wines. Dwoskin also worked at the Beacon where he feels he distinguished himself by waiting on both Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen. He says, "I feel privileged to be able to attest to the fact that they are two people." And the thrill of celebrity proximity doesn't end there. Martha Stewart was once at Bay Burger years ago, shooting a B-roll for her television show. Dwoskin's only job was to sweep the floor in the shot. Stewart informed him, "You're not sweeping properly!"

But that didn't stop Dwoskin from pursuing a career as a chef. More recently, he was maneuvering a big armload of supplies into a city kitchen and gave what he describes as "the stink eye to a 40-year-old skateboarder who was in my way." His staff informed him that that skateboarder was Tony Hawk.

Both Vataash and Dwoskin credit their parents with instilling an early love of food. Dwoskin says his style of cooking is about being "raised surrounded by ingredients, it's based on great product." He reflects that "I'm pretty lucky right now." He's referring to the fact that he does what he loves and that the kitchen he oversees is well stocked and equipped with "a whole animal butcher shop, an indoor smoker, a dehydrator, great product both animals and produce. It's a major chef-run operation and a lotta fun." His "favorite thing is to get a nice piece of fish or meat or poultry, like a duck breast, and bring out its flavor." Meanwhile, Vataash highly recommends "enjoying a whole grilled branzino on a bed of kale with lemon marmalade on a sunny day." Krisel touts East End seafood as "absolutely amazing" and he likes to pair it with Wölffer Estate Vineyard's Finca Rosé.

All three agree that, as Chef Nick says, "where our food comes from is going to radically change over the next 50 years, it will be more local and sustainable of necessity, changing the way we look at food to be more conscious." He points out that "all our sides are vegan, like our charred broccoli. Our vegan coleslaw looks like a regular coleslaw but is very different, containing mango ginger lime vinegar and olive oil. Our 'pulled mushrooms' are smoked trumpet mushrooms that nicely mimic the flavor and texture of meat."

The three hope that they'll have many more opportunities to serve East Enders with passion. As Chef Nick says, "call us, we're in the business of saying 'yes.'"

Dredging Up Sag Harbor's Past

If you want to go looking for buried treasure in the Hamptons, maybe you need look no farther than the beach you're on.

Actually, maybe that's true only if you're on Haven's Beach in Sag Harbor. Because that's where an estimated 8,500 cubic yards of dredge spoil were dumped over the winter. The spoil was piped in from where it was dredged up around Long Wharf, and it didn't contain just sand and muck. No—the bottomland around Long Wharf holds a lot more than that. Rusty nails, old coins, bones, musket balls, pottery shards—you name it.

So, although it wasn't really the intention of Sag Harbor's Harbor Committee when they decided to order the dredging, they wound up transferring a lot of historic artifacts from underwater at Long Wharf to the sand at Haven's Beach.

Adam Osterweil, a teacher at Springs School and an avid 2nd-generation metal detectorist, started coming across rare finds on Haven's Beach a few months ago. He's been pulling rare antique metal objects from the sand regularly ever since.

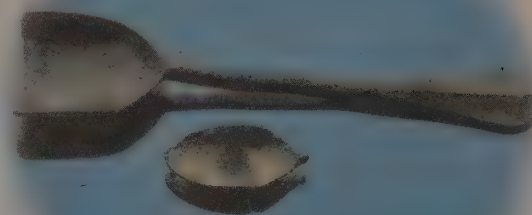

"It's a rat tail pewter spoon," says Osterweil as he holds up a crude-looking implement. "It could be from the mid-1700s." Like anything metal that's been in water for years, the spoon is badly corroded. But you can still tell it didn't start out as a machine-made utensil. It's old. And at some point it wound up on the bottom of the harbor around Long Wharf and was piped to Haven's Beach.

More common among Osterweil's finds on the beach have been square nails, which he says probably date to the mid-1800s. While such nails are usually quite hard to find, Osterweil has been sifting them by the dozen out of the sand at Haven's Beach. He holds up a baggie of these handmade nails. "I get about eight to 10 nails in one swing of the detector," he says. "There are a lot of them around the lifeguard chair." Once again, these nails must have fallen to the bottom around Long Wharf long ago—dropped during the building of whaling ships?—and recently gotten pumped to Haven's Beach.

As Osterweil had been making his discoveries over the last few months, the indefatigable Jean Held of the Sag Harbor Historical Society had discovered the treasure on the beach independently. She began collecting pottery shards, broken china and pieces of beach glass. And, with the help of the internet, she began making tentative identifications of several finds.

"This piece was easy because it has the company's mark on it," says Held as she displays a fragment of china she found on Haven's Beach with the name "Davenport" on the bottom. "It's actually part of a platter that dates to 1825, made in England." Another fragment Held found on the beach depicts the Great Seal of the United States. "It's hand painted, and unless it's a reproduction, it was probably made in England around 1805." As Held points out, the United States didn't have the capacity to produce china in the early 19th century.

AN ANTIQUE PEWTER SPOON COLLECTED ON HAVEN'S BEACH

"At that time, Long Island and New Jersey produced red ware [a thicker, cruder style of dishware], which was fired at a lower temperature."

Held's hunting has turned up numerous shards of red ware that must have rested undisturbed in the waters around Long Wharf for over a century before getting piped to Haven's Beach.

A couple months ago, Held and Osterweil ran into each other while they were both hunting on Haven's Beach, and they've been comparing notes ever since. While they say that what they're doing can't be called archeology—the finds are too scattered to make much sense out of—they're nonetheless working to document their discoveries as thoroughly as possible. Right now, there's a small display at the Sag Harbor Historical Society for visitors to look at what they've dug up.

And just think, if you find something under your beach towel next time you're at Haven's Beach, it may well be a piece of history.

A Rather Gorgeous, Rather Huge House in Sag Harbor Hills

JUSTIN AGNELLO/DOUGLAS ELLIMAN PHOTOGRAPHY

FOR $12 MILLION, YOU DON'T HAVE TO CHOOSE BETWEEN GORGEOUS AND HUGE!

This property has been controversial from the start. It's located in Sag Harbor Hills, a community founded in the 1950s, along with neighbors Azurest and Ninevah, as an enclave where middle class African Americans could summer. But as prices in the rest of the Hamptons (and Sag Harbor) soar, small, half-century-old ranch homes on modest parcels are increasingly giving way to bulkier, taller houses on combined lots. Longtime residents feel that their neighborhoods are losing their identities, values and traditions. Younger generations, inheriting property from parents and grandparents, face a dilemma about whether or not to sell.

This is one of those larger, expensive houses on a combined lot. In 2016, more than a dozen local residents complained to the Board of Historic Preservation and Architectural Review about the project, which is on a merged bayfront parcel and features a 6,760-square-foot house with pool and cabana. The property at the time was going to be built for Robert S. Kapito, the president of BlackRock, the world's largest investment management firm, and his wife Ellen, but is now for sale. Architect Peter Cook told Behind the Hedges, "This and an adjacent property were purchased by them in the hopes of building a home for their family, but they could not build a house large enough to accommodate their expanding family. So rather than combine the properties for one home, they kept them separate and are developing them for resale." (The other property is 2 Harding Terrace, which is available for $5.25 million.)

This property, repped by Justin Agnello, Erica

Grossman, and Hara Kang at Elliman, is asking $12 million, significantly higher than any other property in the area. It's undoubtedly gorgeous inside and out, with high-end finishes and views of the bay from many rooms, and terraces to make the most of the view. We love the style of the house, which combines the best of modern and traditional. Set on 0.8 of an acre, the house boasts 7 bedrooms, 7 baths, and 5 half-baths. It also includes a home theater and a wine cellar.

So the $12 million question is, will anyone pay that much in this location? Stay tuned. 🏡

Stately Queen Anne in Greenport Is Yours for $1.35M

TAKE A RIDE TO THE NORTH FORK AND CHECK OUT THIS VICTORIAN HOME

Always dreamed of having your own little charming inn? This Victorian house, which is just steps to downtown Greenport, is currently being used as a B&B. But with just four bedrooms, it could easily be turned back into a family home. The house is listed as being built in 1837; if so, it was remodeled later, because the Queen Anne turret and Italianate brackets are later styles.

Set on 0.22 of an acre, the 3,500-square-foot house also boasts 4.5 baths. There are many period details (fireplaces, woodwork, windows, doors), and everything looks to be in fine condition, although the baths aren't pictured. There's also a two-story barn/studio and an outdoor pergola. Repped by Joann Wind and Bridget Elkin at Daniel Gale Sotheby's, the asking price is $1.35 million. What do you think of the place?
